2.0 CITIZEN COMMENTS

2.1 Police Chief, Robby Russo, reported that two weeks earlier he sent out a tweet referencing the Brighton High School Anti-Violence Protest. It was intended to be a matter of fact statement but was perceived by many as disrespectful. He stated that nothing could be further from his intent. They contacted the school who requested two officers. He sent 10 officers to ensure that the event was not disturbed, and that there was no violence toward those participating. He thought it was unfortunate for some students to use the opportunity for that purpose; however, he personally supported the concept. He explained that staff routinely trains for such a scenario and takes it very seriously. Chief Russo reiterated that there was no ill intent and he never imagined his words would be taken as demeaning. The notion that officers would ever make fun of students was simply not true. He apologized if his words were offensive.

2.2 Patsy Young was grateful for the Police Department. She recognized the importance of paying attention to the budget, but also realized the importance of personal safety. Her family was involved in a recent situation where she had become exceptionally grateful for the Police Department have a quick response time.

2.3 Margaret Flynn identified herself as a Brighton High School student and thanked Chief Russo for his words. She was one of the organizers of the walk-out honoring those who died. She wanted to see the Police Department as well as City personnel support students in their political efforts. She also hoped to see the Police Department and social media outlets refrain from pushing a political agenda.
2.4 Declan Gleason was identified as a student who participated in the walk out at Brighton High School. He commented that the City’s police officers have taken an oath to uphold the community. He believed they should not make matter of fact statements and the officers should support students who want a safer school. He expressed opposition to Chief Russo’s tweet and encouraged the Cottonwood Heights Police Department (CHPD) and public sector to show more support to those who have died from gun violence and establish safer gun laws.

2.5 Neve Lany thanked Chief Russo for his statement and stated that it was a mourning service, not a political event. To her the negative feedback seemed odd. She commented that the students who left to go to alternate locations rather than support the walkout were instructed by teachers not to do so. She considered it a beautiful event and asked the Council Members if they had seen the videos or attended the walkout.

2.6 Suzanne Houghton identified herself as a 35-year-old resident and expressed appreciation to the students who were present to share their views. She was appreciative of the Police Department and their quick response time. She agreed with the previous statement that the budget does not account for safety.

2.7 Ian Adams was present on behalf of the Utah Fraternal Order of Police where he serves as Executive Director. He explained that they are the largest police organization in the State and represent over 3,200 active law enforcement personnel and the legal, political, and media interests of their members. Mr. Adams attended a recent budget meeting and wished to discuss the direction of the budget planning of the Police Department. Following the meeting, he received calls from members who were concerned with the tone and comments made by some Council Members. This caused the officers to feel that their accomplishments and sacrifices were not adequately addressed. Others expressed concern that the City was paying a premium for police services. Because the budget has been well managed in the past, the Police Department has been able to accomplish its mission. Mr. Adams stated that their goal is to maintain an above average experienced and professional work force. Part of their success comes from the good relationships with the Council and staff. He noted that Officer Morzelewski caught a serial robber while off-duty, Officers Incardine and Salmon paid for a room for a transient woman who was having a hard time. Officer Laufaha shoveled snow from an elderly resident’s driveway. All of these services were done out of a sense of dedication to providing premier police services. He reported that Cottonwood Heights is the only department he was aware of in the Salt Lake Valley and perhaps the State that is not suffering from a critical manpower shortage. The Cottonwood Heights Police Department has delivered on the higher level of service desired. He urged the Council to not make the mistake of shortchanging the officers in an effort to save money up front and instead consider the sacrifices of those officers.

2.8 Kayli Roller, a 17-year resident, had a specific experience with the Police Department and expressed gratitude for their service. Her son has special needs and although they have secured their home, he manages to get out if the opportunity arises. The Police Department has rescued their son multiple times. She was grateful for their quick response times and believed it is necessary and extremely important to their family.

2.9 Sheila Jennings, a 26-year resident, stated that the Council has a difficult job. She was very pleased with on the progress and work being done on behalf of the citizens. Most recently, the Public Works Department has shown huge progress and proven that local control is best. She was alarmed while attending the prior City Council Meeting where there was discussion about cost versus quality of service. She attested to the fact that the City gets what they pay for as she was a resident at the time of the City’s incorporation. At that time, a business alarm turned out to be a substantial burglary and because of a long response time, an officer assigned to Cottonwood Heights was in Herriman and Magna. This resulted in an even bigger problem. Last month, there was a domestic dispute next door and the police response time was minimal. The person who left the scene was soon found and arrested. Ms. Jennings commented that the suspect had an active warrant and was a registered sex offender. She works in police services and has witnessed the benefits of the City having its own Police Department. She asked the Council to not cut funding for services. She has worked closely with Chief Russo who takes great care in the funding he is given. She suggested that the answer is not reduction, but public education. Ms. Jennings welcomed the opportunity to further discuss the matter and recommended that if the Council was looking to cut funding they should look elsewhere.

2.10 James Jones reported that he has been a servant of the City since 1985 and has taken the FEMA courses, worked as a Building Commissioner, and had the opportunity to work with the Police Department. He believed it was important to know that you get what you pay for. He took it upon himself to speak to 75 people regarding the subject and of those, 93% do not want change.

2.11 Isaac Reese identified himself as a senior at Brighton High School. He expressed concern with the tweet associated with the student walk out. He believed it would take 40 minutes round trip for students to travel to the 7-Eleven to purchase items, where the walkout only took 20 minutes. Regardless of the motivation behind the tweet, the perception was that it was a political statement discrediting the March for Our Lives Movement. He believed the tweet did nothing helpful or supportive to the community and in turn caused a divide within the Cottonwood Heights Community and worked to further distance the youth from working with and trusting the Cottonwood Heights Police Department. He stated that the relationship was already strained, and he believed it was logical that they would be better off repairing their reputation rather than causing more harm. He stated that both the Salt Lake City Police Department and CHPD claim that their social media accounts are not monitored. He suggested a professional take them over.

2.12 Anna McNamor commented that community members recently spoken about the condition of infrastructure and are looking for more engagement from City leaders regarding the sustainability of the community. She believed it was vital for the City to appoint someone to serve as a Sustainability Director to address issues such as road maintenance, natural issues, open space issues, and idling. She was impressed with the youth for their leadership and opposed the twitter comment as well as the time it took for City officials to make a statement.

2.13 Mayor Peterson pointed out that they are unable to respond to every comment or question because of time constraints, but each is addressed when they go to the Work Session following the Business Meeting.

2.14 Mike Hansen thanked Chief Russo for his comments and noted that he did not find the tweet offensive. He reminded those present that 10 officers were sent when only two were requested. He reported that Council Member Bruce has found ways to encourage attendance at City meetings and asked that she hold meetings with her constituents at City Hall rather than her place of business or the Library. He believed that transparency is extremely important and having listened intently to the budget discussions, he found there were things inappropriately discussed along with calls that were made. His business is located in Millcreek and under the care of the UPD he has had terrible service with a 20-minute emergency response time. He has experienced many positive experiences while living in his Cottonwood Heights neighborhood since the inception of the CHPD and believed that reducing services in police would not be favorable.

2.15 Council Member Bruce commented that she would be happy to hold meetings on a Wednesday evening at City Hall. She stated that she has been reserving rooms at Whitmore Library so as not to impose on the City facility.

2.16 Shawn Ferre reported that he has lived in Cottonwood Heights his entire life and expressed gratitude to the Police Department. Contrary to some views that have been expressed, he believed they were doing a fantastic job and care about the community. He feels safer with their quick response time and their positive actions are frequently seen in the media. He often sees officers at public events, mingling with citizens as well as working, and he was opposed to their services being reduced.

2.17 Craig Weston, a 21-year resident stated that when they were under the Sheriff’s Department, his home was broken into and all they gave him was a case number. Having young children, the lack of protection created fear and an unsafe environment. He has had many great experiences with Cottonwood Heights Police Officers and they are premiere individuals who connect with the community. He has been involved with Ute Conference Little League Football that involves 800 children on a given Saturday. The impact the officers have had has been incredible. It was his opinion that downsizing the visibility of the police officers is dangerous and believed critically dangerous for the safety of his family and neighbors.

2.18 Jaren Davis reported that he was present two weeks earlier regarding a situation that took place in his neighborhood involving two frustrated neighbors. Both families admitted they might never participate in retail venues within the City but have since changed their hearts and are grateful for the Council’s action. He thanked the Council for their compassion and willingness to listen to help correct the community. He admired Chief Russo for his dedication, honesty, and character and believed he has no malice in his heart.

2.19 Bob Jacobs commented that he has lived in the same home since 1976 and has seen a big improvement in government. He commended the Brighton High students for their action. He agreed with holding informal meetings and encouraged the City to distribute notices on the specifics about when they are to be held. He asked that care be taken when considering the Accessory Dwelling Unit (ADU) issue. He believed this would eliminate R-1 zoning if approved. He opposed the ADU Ordinance and asked how enforcement will be handled.

2.20 Nancy Hardy appreciated the passion expressed for the Police Department and stated that growth in the City is inevitable. She encouraged a well thought out plan that encourages growth and beautification. She believed that projects are being pushed without the needed infrastructure and ensuring that it is good for the residents. She supported the increased density for the Tier 2 Planned Unit Development (PUD) and commented it was acceptable to have varying density.

Cottonwood Heights City Council Meeting – 03/27/2018
2.21 Tim Halbeck stated that all of his experiences with the Cottonwood Heights Police Department over the past seven years have been positive. He supported a tax increase to maintain the current level of service. He also applauded the Brighton High students who supported the walk out.

2.22 Eric Kraan expressed concern with Ordinance 19.76 regarding fences and identified inconsistencies he has found in the language. He questioned the appointment of a realtor to represent District 3 on the Planning Commission and believed that the policy should be further reviewed. He appreciated Council Member Mikell emphasizing the importance of bicycle lanes in conjunction with road work and expressed concern with the Wasatch Front Regional Council and the way projects are funded. He asked that discussions to be open to public hearings before being moved over to the engineer and presented it to interlocal agencies.

2.23 Jin Fredricksen commended the youth for their comments and believed Chief Russo to be a wonderful person. She did not mind paying more to preserve the City and maintain the safety of the community. She thanked Council Member Bruce for her involvement and informal meetings and had found it to be a very inviting environment. Advance notice was requested for meetings where the ADU issue will be discussed.

2.24 Ryan Carrier expressed opposition to the tweet and the time that elapsed before the issue of the tweet was addressed by the City Council.

2.25 Nicole Bolke was present in support of maintaining police services at the current level. As an 18-year resident she considered the level of service the County provides to be sub-par. She was not in favor of outsourcing to the County and supported maintaining local control and access. She commented that the job the Police Department does also includes observation of changes in normal behavior. She appreciated their knowledge and understanding of those variances.

2.26 Council Member Mikell requested that students who suggested they would like to see more support from the City Council submit their ideas and allow the Council to take them into consideration.

2.27 Mayor Peterson concurred with Council Member Mikell and encouraged students to be more involved. He noted that he and the Council are open for discussion at any time.

2.28 A student addressed the Council and stated that they are a part of the system and want to be treated like equal citizens. He expressed frustration with being talked down to and believed that doing so is contrary to democracy.

2.29 Mayor Peterson apologized for anything that may have been taken as demeaning and applauded the action of the students. He encouraged further discussion and stated that as a Council, they are more than willing to further explore their strategy and plans to meet their goals.

2.30 Robert Jacobs considered Mayor Peterson to be the humblest person he has ever met. He suggested that cell phone use fines be increased as more are killed by distracted driving than guns.

3.1.1 City Treasurer, David Muir, presented the Financial Report for the month of March 2018.
