Weigh in on the 2022-2023 city budget

Council member Scott Bracken

About the time this newsletter hits your mailbox, the city will post for public review a tentative budget for the July 1, 2022, to June 30, 2023, fiscal year. The tentative budget outlines where we expect to get the revenue we use to provide city services and how those funds are to be allocated. You can peruse the documents and analyze the tentative expenditures now in preparation for the public hearing coming up on May 17, 2022.

I'd like to point out a couple things about our tentative budget and the current economy. Everyone has been hit by inflation over the last year, including the city, and our costs for materials, personnel, and all other items have increased. We do not get a "special pass" for being a governmental agency.

Property tax revenues to the city, about 14 percent of your total property tax bill, are not adjusted with inflation. This means a 7 percent inflation rate over 12 months decreases the purchasing power of our property tax by that same 7 percent. About 37 percent of the city's overall revenue comes from property taxes.

Another point: As housing values go up, the certified tax rate goes down, so there is no windfall/revenue increase to the city when assessed values go up. The net result is that the purchasing power of property tax decreases year-over-year.

Sales tax revenues follow our collective spending patterns. We have been fortunate that our sales tax revenues only flattened over the first year of the pandemic (rather than decrease as they did in some areas) and have gotten back on a positive track this year. This growth in sales tax is where we can cover a lot of city service cost increases (police, fire, road work/public works, and planning).

Sales taxes amount to roughly 33 percent of our total revenue. When sales tax revenue goes up equally with costs, the budget can be balanced without any tax increases or significant fee additions. Sales taxes for 2022 are on track to be well over $8 million.

Like most governments, personnel costs make up the bulk of our expenditures; however, capital projects are also an essential annual expenditure. Cottonwood Heights will be in the fifth and final year of our five-year road surface maintenance program.

This focus of capital funds over that time has allowed us to not fall behind in much of our capital needs and will allow our next five-year plan to address road reconstruction more heavily where needed and keep things in good shape.

The council has discussed and is moving forward with design plans for an upgraded public works yard. We've received many questions about why all our snowplows and other equipment are allowed to sit out in the weather all year round, and we hope to solve that with new garage space and facilities to keep our equipment in good shape and allow our employees to better maintain it on-site. This saves us time and money.

An added benefit of keeping our snowplow trucks in garages is that they can be pre-loaded and stored with salt before a storm hits. This allows the drivers to get out plowing as much as an hour sooner as they won't have to wait in line to fill up their trucks.

With construction prices continuing to rise faster than inflation and the federal government having promised to raise interest rates over the upcoming year, costs will continue to rise. We are also fortunate at this time to have access to one-time funds from the federal government, a recent refinance of existing bonds that reduced interest costs, and other cost savings by upgrading the space so that we can keep capital bonding expenses as low as possible. Moving forward with these plans now will save us more in the future and allow us to provide better service next year.

Please take the opportunity to look over the tentative budget before the city council adopts it on June 21, 2022. Now is the time to make any needed adjustments for our next fiscal year. ■

Find out how your property and sales taxes fund Cottonwood Heights services

Most services Cottonwood Heights provides are funded through general tax revenues, including property tax and sales tax.

Property tax

Cottonwood Heights' largest source of revenue is property tax, which represents 37 percent of total general fund revenue. Salt Lake County assesses real and business personal property within the city, collects taxes for those properties, and then distributes those funds to individual taxing entities. Taxes are distributed to school districts, municipalities, counties, and special districts. See the chart on the right for the relative percentage of each resident's property tax distributed to individual taxing entities.

By state law, primary residences are taxed at 55 percent of their value as assessed by Salt Lake County. All other real and business personal property is taxed at 100 percent of assessed value. Every June, the county submits a certified tax rate providing the city the same revenue amount as the previous year, plus an extra amount for any new property development within city boundaries during the prior year. Unless the city chooses to adopt a higher tax rate, property tax rates decrease when values increase due to a downward adjustment in the levy rate, which keeps tax levels steady. Cities must evaluate and sometimes increase rates above the certified rate to add collection services or keep pace with cost inflation. The city implemented a 2019 increase, but the average increase from 2014 to 2021 (outside the 2019 increase) was 1.04 percent.

Relative tax rates

The chart on the right shows tax rates for other cities in Salt Lake County for the 2021 tax year. For cities in the Unified Fire Service Area and/or a law enforcement service area, those rates are added to the city rate. The average property tax rate for these cities is 0.002308 and the median rate is 0.002026. Cottonwood Heights' rate for the 2021-2022 fiscal year is 0.001740.

Sales tax

Sales tax is the second-largest source of revenue for the city, representing 33 percent of total governmental revenue. Retail sales in Cottonwood Heights are charged a tax rate of 7.25 percent, and 1 percent of the 7.25 percent is assessed by the city, while the other half is distributed statewide based on population. Cottonwood Heights receives slightly more from the population distribution than it does from sales. In the fiscal 2021 year, the city received $1.10 for every $1 of local option sales tax collected.

Sales tax revenue fluctuates with inflation and the economy. Cottonwood Heights collected $7,894,215 in sales tax revenue during fiscal year 2021. Fiscal year 2021 collections were 17.49 percent higher than 2020. Before knowing the full collections, the city set the 2021 budget at $7.2 million. Now, projections show the amount collected will likely be around $8 million for this budget year.

The remaining revenues come from:

- 6 percent energy sales and use tax
- 5 percent cable franchise tax
- State and federal grants
- Service charges (permits and licenses)
- Court fines ■

Police department auctions signed Post Malone guitar for Camp Hope program

Chief Robby Russo

The Salt Lake district attorney's office recently challenged Salt Lake valley police departments to support Camp Hope, a summer camp for children and teens 8-17 impacted by domestic violence who enjoy horseback riding, rafting, and camping in Utah's mountains.

The Cottonwood Heights police department accepted the challenge, and our own superstar resident Post Malone donated a signed Fender Squier guitar, which we auctioned to kick off fundraising.

Thanks to the residents who shared our social media posts and media outlets who promoted the auction, including Cottonwood Heights' own "DB" Danger Boy and Hooker from radio station Rock 106.7, many people throughout the valley donated to the cause.

Jodi Avila of Magna took home the signed Post Malone guitar with a top bid of $5,600 on April 1. Her children are huge Post Malone fans and she enjoys helping children, regularly donating to children's causes and her local elementary school.

While large contributions make a difference for Camp Hope, which is completely funded by the district attorney's office, smaller donations of even $5 to $10 add up, too.

Sim Gill, Salt Lake County district attorney, recently spoke about the importance of this camp for children and teens.

"Trauma is inter-generational — it's passed from one family to another. By interrupting that, we can have the best outcomes for not only them but their families," he said.

To contribute or learn more about Camp Hope and Sim Gill's vision for helping youth, visit slco.org/district-attorney and click Donate to Camp Hope. ■

Follow these seven steps to prevent mosquitoes from breeding and biting

The South Salt Lake Valley Mosquito Abatement District (SSLVMAD) promotes public health and quality of life by reducing the number of larval mosquitoes that develop to adult stage in stagnant water, including ponds, pasturelands, and birdbaths. Help control the mosquito population by:

- Eliminating unnecessary standing water from your property

- Emptying and refreshing desirable standing water at least weekly
- Treating livestock watering troughs and ornamental ponds with mosquito control products (free from SSLVMAD)
- Reporting other standing water to the SSLVMAD

To avoid being bitten by mosquitoes:

- Use Environmental Protection Agency-approved mosquito repellents
- Wear light-colored, loose clothing that covers as much skin as possible
- Avoid outdoor activities between dusk and dawn (peak mosquito activity times)

For more information about mosquito control or to request services, visit sslvmad.org. ■

Bengal Boulevard roundabout: Here's what to expect when it's complete

Cottonwood Heights and the Utah Department of Transportation (UDOT) began constructing a roundabout at the intersection of Bengal Boulevard, 2300 E. and 2325 E. on April 4. Crews will work Monday through Saturday between 7:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. and expect to complete the project by fall 2022.

In-road construction will not begin until Brighton High School students leave for the summer. Traffic will then shift to one lane in either direction, and the speed limit will be reduced from 35 to 25 miles per hour.

Roundabouts are safe and efficient because they:

- Promote a continuous flow of traffic
- Require fewer lanes for an intersection
- Lower travel speeds (roundabout speeds average 15-20 miles per hour)
- Don't require drivers to rush to beat traffic lights
- Prevent t-bone and head-on collisions

with curved roads and one-way traffic

To successfully navigate the roundabout when it's complete:

- Slow down and get in line at the entrance to the roundabout
- Yield to traffic already in the roundabout
- Drive counterclockwise to your exit once you enter the circle
- Look for pedestrians and use your turn signal before exiting the roundabout

For project updates, visit ch.utah.gov/bengal-blvd, email bengalblvd.roundabout@gmail.com, or call the project team at 1-385-557-7090. ■

Attend a public hearing May 4 for the sensitive lands ordinance update

The Cottonwood Heights Planning Commission is holding a public hearing Wednesday, May 4, at 6 p.m. at City Hall (2277 E. Bengal Blvd.) for an update to the city's Sensitive Lands Evaluation and Development Standards (SLEDS) code.

Cottonwood Heights is in the process of updating the ordinance that regulates development in city areas that are potentially susceptible to naturally occurring hazards. The ordinance has been adjusted several times in the past but is currently being updated to incorporate more current data and industry best practices.

The ordinance protects the public from naturally occurring hazards by requiring comprehensive engineering standards when development occurs in city areas where such hazards are known to exist. It includes extensive pre-construction engineering and design requirements to properly study and provide mitigation for potential hazards.

Hazards requiring additional study and regulation by the SLEDS ordinance include:

- Steep slopes
- Earthquake ground rupture potential
- Landslides
- Rockfall/debris flow

- Flooding/shallow ground water
- Riparian waterway protection

Cottonwood Heights has less recycling contamination, but we can improve

Wasatch Front Waste & Recycling District collects recyclables weekly and drops them off at a local sorting facility. The district's contamination rate — the amount of trash found in blue recycling bins — last quarter was 27 percent, compared to 20.56 percent in Cottonwood Heights.

While the city's level was lower than the district level, residents can continue to reduce the amount of non-recyclables collected in recycling bins. The largest contaminant in Cottonwood Heights is plastic packaging materials. This includes:

- Bubble wrap

- Styrofoam
- Padded envelopes
- Plastic wrap

Styrofoam cannot be recycled and should go in the trash bin. However, you can take bubble wrap and plastic film to grocery stores that recycle plastic, including Target and Smith's.

By removing these contaminants and others, including wire, packaging plastics, and food waste, you protect sorting machines from jamming and keep other recyclables clean for processing. Visit wasatchfrontwaste.org for more information. ■

Brighton High's School's Nicole Shon named Canyon School District's top high school teacher

Nicole Shon, who teaches chemistry and science at Brighton High School, has helped her students love challenging courses that cover everything from protons to the periodic table. You could call it a symbiotic relationship.

"She is literally the best teacher I've ever had," one student said in nominating Shon for the Bengals' 2022 Teacher of the Year award, which she won.

Shon was also honored as Canyons District's High School Teacher of the Year and is among 47 school-based winners across the district, including the Cottonwood Heights-area teachers listed below.

"Ms. Shon is loved by her students and known for her kindness and patience in teaching a challenging subject," Principal Tom Sherwood says. "She makes it her personal responsibility to ensure that all students learn and enjoy their experience in her classroom." ■

Three tips for sustainable spring cleaning

Spring has arrived, and for many people, this also means it's time for spring cleaning. If you're inspired to rejuvenate your space, consider implementing a few sustainable practices.

Donate excess. Drop off housewares, clothing, and appliances you no longer need at your local thrift store or, for ultimate convenience, list items on an online marketplace or donation forum instead. Consider these resources and remember to verify donations are being accepted before you go.

- Deseret Industries (deseretindustries.org)
- The Salvation Army (satruck.org)
- Goodwill (goodwill.org)
- Local Buy Nothing Project groups (buynothingproject.org)
- Big Brothers Big Sisters Utah (bbbsu.org)

Use reusable supplies. Paper towels, plastic bottles, and disposable dusters can quickly accumulate into a trash heap. Repurpose old pillowcases and t-shirts for dusters and rags or opt for reusable versions. Many online retailers offer these supplies and include free shipping!

Go digital. Unsubscribe from catalogs, opt for online billing when possible, and digitize files using a scanner (but remember that hard copies are critical for some records). Once you've sorted a pile of paper to shred, consider bringing it to a community shred event. While you can't recycle at-home paper shredding in curbside bins, many large-scale shred events implement bulk recycling for the byproducts. Cottonwood Heights will hold a community shred event this summer, so watch for a date coming soon. ■
