Protect your Holiday Packages

1. Track Packages

Most shippers, including Amazon, FedEx and UPS, give you the option to electronically track a package on its journey to your home.

2. Require a Signature for Delivery

Another way to thwart porch pirates is to ask that someone sign for a package when it's delivered, such as a person at your home or a next-door neighbor.

3. Use a Package Locker

Rather than having a package left on your porch, consider using a package locker.

Amazon, for instance, operates self-service lockers at locations throughout the U.S. When your package arrives at an Amazon locker, the company will send you a delivery confirmation email with instructions on how to pick it up..

4. Have Packages Delivered When You'll Be Home

As an alternative, have packages shipped to your office instead of your home. Amazon even lets you provide secure access to your garage so that packages can be kept out of public view.

5. Pick Hiding Places for Packages

If possible, ask delivery drivers to put packages behind a plant, a piece of furniture or another item on your porch so they're not easy prey for porch pirates, Klosterman recommends.

6. Consider In-Store Pickup

Some retailers even offer pickup via lockers, so you don't have to wait in line at customer service to get your order.

7. Talk to Your Neighbors

Stanton recommends keeping trusted neighbors in the loop about anticipated package deliveries so they can be on the lookout for packages if you're not around.

8. Put Security Measures in Place

One of the most widely suggested anti-theft moves is the installation of doorbell video cameras and other security equipment. A doorbell video camera might deter a would-be thief or can capture sharable footage in case a porch pirate successfully steals a package.
